DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ross (US 5,465,213).

Ross discloses a computer based book manufacturing system that either explicitly or inherently teaches all of the claimed limitations of the current application. Which is evidenced by the fact that the current application describes a system and methods for printing one or more files stored in computing systems in a communication network using where a user interacts control menus available at a printing site to select one or more documents stored on computing systems attached to the network. Selected documents are then converted to printable format and printed at the printing site without the user having to step away from the site. It also describes a system for selecting and printing one or more documents accessible via a communication network includes a printing device attached to the communication network, said printing device including: control interface for selecting a document accessible via the communication network; executable code stored in a memory, wherein in response to user interaction with the control interface the code is executed by a processor to cause the system convert a selected document to printable format and print the document at the printing device.

With the computer based manufacturing system of Ross a user would select a desired book from a database stored on a computer in a digital format. Upon selection of a particular book from the data base, a single copy of the book to include text and the color cover is printed by high speed raster printing engines. (Please note col 4, line9 – col 8, line 48).
